TIENTSIN & PEKING.

Chiang Kai-shek Orders Big Offensive.

MORE FIGHTING IMMINENT.

Kiangsu Threatened By Chang Tsung-chang.

HANKOW FOURTH ARMY MARCHING ON ANFUI

News of a Chiang Kai-shek offensive on many fronts comes to hand to-day. Tientsin and Peking are to be attacked, and he has specified the general who is to undertake the task.

This information points to a breaking off of the negotiations which were said to be in progress between Chiang and Marshal Chang Tso-lin.

Kiangsu is threatened by General Chang Tsung-chang, and the Hankow forces are moving on Anfu.

Mr. MacMurray, the American Minister to China, has been called home to discuss the situation in China.

MR. MACMURRAY CALLED HOME.

Shanghai, This morning. General Chiang Kai-shek, contrary to report, has not returned to Nanking. He is at the front directing operations. After a full survey of the situation he has directed Gen. Yen Sik-sen to despatch his troops from Nanking and attack Tientsin and Peking. Gens. Pak Man-wai and Wang Tiu-fe have been ordered with their forces to take up stations at An Hing, where the situation is said to be serious.

To Attack Anfu. Kiangsu, Yesterday. The Hankow party has decided to attack Anfu, and Chang Tsung-chang will take charge of the Fourth Army moving in that direction.

Further Offensives. Peking, Yesterday. General Chang Tsung-chang has telegraphed here stating he has had a consultation with General Chiang Kai-shek and that he intends to attack Kiangsu on behalf of Gen. Sun Shun-fong. Fong Piu-yau took exception to this and declares he is willing to attempt the capture of Kiangsu and Anfu.—Hong Kong Evening Post.

Mr. MacMurray Called Home. Washington, yesterday. Mr. Kellogg has summoned Mr. MacMurray, to confer on the situation in China.—Reuter's American Service.

Wounded at Nanking. Shanghai, yesterday. The Shanghai "Evening News" publishes a report from Nanking to the effect that it is estimated that 3,000 wounded have been crowded into the hospitals of Nanking and Pukow, and that more are arriving from the North.—Reuter.

Searching Foreign Ships. Shanghai, yesterday. Nanking's Official News Agency states that Chinese naval sailors, when "searching the s.s. "Bertram Rickmers" on July 20 discovered 2,950 cases of dynamite, 105 cases of percussion caps, and 50 cases of fuses, all of which were removed from the steamer, which is still detained, while the "Muensterland" has been released, after a locomotive and "other war materials aboard" were confiscated.—Reuter.

Peking Peace Talk. Shanghai, yesterday. The peace parleys have apparently been resuscitated by the arrival last week of General Ho Cheng-chun, Marshal Chiang Kai-shek's official delegate.

An Ankuochun spokesman states that a tentative agreement has been reached between Mukden and Shansi. It is understood that the proposed pact calls for a suspension of hostilities until Nanking defeats Hankow, after which political questions will be discussed at a further conference.—Reuter.

The Hankow Strike. Hankow, Monday. Ricshas are now on the street again. It is reported that the strike has not been abandoned by the Union, but that the ricsha coolies are working under military protection against the wishes of their Union. It is also stated that the ricsha strike was only a trap set for the military, the real object being to seize the electric light and water works and in the ensuing confusion to obtain arms from the military.

The power of the leaders appears to be waning. Last night the military seized 2,000 bamboo poles with knives attached. These weapons were intended to be used by the coolies during the attack.—British Naval Wireless.

Fighting at Hukow. Hankow, July 28.

It is reported that fighting has occurred at Hukow at the mouth of the Poyang Lake. General Galen is said to be leaving for the front shortly when a general action along the front, including Chekiang, will be commenced.

In spite of the assurance given that foreign property in Ichang would be evacuated by the Chinese, by July 23, it is confirmed by telegraph to-day that the Chinese are still in occupation.

The Mystery of Mr. Riley. We have still no news of Mr. Riley of "The Times."

Mr. Riley, the correspondent for "The Times," who has been missing since the morning of July 23 when he left his quarters at the Lunghai Railway offices at Chengchow, Honan, was on his way to visit a Christian village when he disappeared so mysteriously. Considerable concern is expressed by local officials regarding his whereabouts, and a search is progressing at Chengchow. The local Chinese authorities there have been requested to give every assistance in trying to ascertain what has happened to him.

A report from Wuhu yesterday states that six transports and seven junks as well as three tugs arrived laden with troops on Thursday. These troops were speedily disembarked and the transports retired down river.

No New Developments.

On July 27, it was noticed in Nanking that about 300 soldiers were being billeted in bungalows belonging to the International Export and Import Co. at their Hochi premises. Available information pointed to the fact that the occupants were officers of the 4th Cantonese Army and the foreign authorities immediately took steps to inquire into the reason for this. An interview with Dr. Wu, Minister for Foreign Affairs, showed him to be genuinely concerned about the matter, but he intimated that the shortage of billets in the city for such a large number of troops stationed there at present was responsible. Further he expressed his sincere desire to avoid any interference with foreigners.

The following day troop movements continued in Nanking but no new developments in the situation were noted.—"N. C. D. News."

Negotiations with Peking. Peking, July 28.

A Mr. Lo, a representative of General Chiang Kai-shek, secretly arrived here on July 26. He is now negotiating with General Yang Yu-ling, Marshal Chang's Chief of Staff, in great secrecy regarding cessation of hostilities between the Northern and Southern forces.

The substance of the negotiations and the names of the conferees are kept strictly secret, but it is reported that the negotiations between the two parties are progressing quite hopefully. The terms of compromise sub-

IN BAD SPIRIT.

American Paper's Attack On Britain.

WAR DEBTS AND SHIPS.

Regret Expressed In Many Official Circles.

Washington, yesterday. Some stir has been caused by a sarcastic anti-British leader in the "Washington Post" regarding war debts and the naval controversy. The article, which, however, does not reflect American official opinion, says that before beginning to extinguish her war debt Britain began building the strongest naval force in the world. If Geneva had done nothing else it had shown Great Britain where she could save money by scrapping unnecessary cruisers and stopping her new naval construction. Americans who favoured the cancellation of war debts may assure themselves that Britain's debt payments would not interfere with the expansion of her navy.

The publication of the article caused regret to many American officials.—Reuter's American Service.

C. N. CO. STRIKE.

NO NEWS OF THE LATEST CONFERENCE.

Apparently the conference at Shanghai yesterday regarding the China Navigation strike has not resulted in any definite decisions being arrived at, for on inquiry at the local office of the Guild this morning it was learned that there was nothing to communicate.

The meeting yesterday was between the Company and the representatives of the officers and engineers at which the latter were to give a reply to proposals made by the Company at a previous Conference.

There are hopes of a comparatively early outcome of the negotiations, it is learnt in other quarters.

At 8.55 p.m., yesterday a ricsha was run into from behind by motor cycle No. 90, outside the National City Bank of New York, in Queen's Road Central. The ricsha passenger was thrown out heavily and suffered injury his left leg.

mitted by the delegate of General Chiang are said to be:—(1) That the Nanking forces will immediately suspend hostilities unconditionally remaining in their status quo; and (2) that both the two parties should keep strictly secret the substance of an agreement on armistice.

It appears likely that the Northern forces will make a halt at Hsuehchow, with the Southern troops at the Huaiho River, and that the region between Hsuehchow and the Huaiho River will be made a buffer zone.—"Toho."

New Commander at Shansi.

Hankow, July 31. A new appointment has been made by the local military authorities to command the troops stationed at Shansi. The new commander is as yet not well-known and is a General Lee Wa-yeh and he is to take charge of the 38th Division of the 13th Army. The appointment was telegraphed some days ago and yesterday the Military Council of the Nationalist Government received an urgent reply from General Lee stating on oath that he will serve the Government to the best of his ability.

Shantungese at Hsuehchow.

Tsingtao, July 28. The Shantung forces, which have entered Hsuehchow, are the 6th, 7th, and 9th Armies, and Southern soldiers are no longer to be seen in Fuli, about 25 li to the north of Hsuehchow. The 3rd Shantung Army is now stationed in Talerhchuang (?), which place was occupied by the army on the 22nd.—Marshal Chang Tsung-chang, at midnight on July 25 gave orders to the Chief of the Aviation Department at Hsuehchow instructing him to prepare for advancing some of the aviation corps to Hsuehchow shortly.—"Toho."

"I DO NOT CHOOSE."

Coolidge Not Running For Presidency.

HIS PERSONAL STATEMENT.

Typewritten Declaration Released Without Comment.

Rapid, City, yesterday. President Coolidge has declared: "I do not choose" to run for the Presidency in 1928.—This statement, typewritten on small slips of paper was handed to pressmen without comment.—Reuter's American Service.

Four Years To-day.

Calvin Coolidge became President of the United States after the death of Warren G. Harding, the oath of office being administered by his father, a notary public, at the paternal home in the village of Plymouth, Vermont, at 2.47 on the morning of August 3, 1923. He has thus held office for four years to a day.

Mr. Calvin Coolidge, who was elected as President by an overwhelming majority in a New Englander, having been born in Plymouth, Vermont, in 1872. A graduate of Amherst College, he began to practise law in 1897, and the following year he started his political career. During the war he served as Lieutenant-Governor of Massachusetts, and this was followed by two terms as Governor, a position of much responsibility and influence. He was serving as Governor when the Republican National Convention elected him to be Mr. Harding's running-mate in the national election of 1920.

New Englander.

Both as an executive officer and as a public speaker Mr. Coolidge had upheld the best traditions of New England. He escaped the charge of being called "machine" man—the creature of a political organization—and he had shown much strength of character in dealing with some serious Labour problems.

Mrs. Coolidge—his marriage took place in 1905—has been a popular hostess in Washington. Simplicity is the keynote of this New England family: there has never been any lavish display in their official entertainments.

Finally, it may be said that no American senator is better informed regarding international questions or more interested in them than the man who has presided in the Senate since March 1921, and has directed the destinies of the country since the death of President Harding. He is a practical idealist.

INSURANCE AT SEA.

Compulsory Measure For Passengers.

THE MARITIME CONFERENCE.

Many Nations Reject Proposed Plan.

Amsterdam, yesterday. Divergent views were expressed by the delegates of 12 nations present at the International Maritime Conference in discussing the draft convention for the compulsory insurance of passengers travelling by sea. This aims at the establishment of a scheme whereby passengers will be compensated for accidents irrespective of whether the same are due to the negligence of the shipowner, passenger or to fortuitous circumstances.

The United States delegate declared that the proposed scheme had no chance of adoption by the Congress.

Baron Takahashi maintained that Japan's peculiar position rendered an international regulation unnecessary and, like the German and Dutch delegates recommended the reference of the draft convention back to the sub-committee for further investigation.—Reuter.

Pilgrim Transport.

Among the objections raised was that the shipowner would be saddled with the role of insurance agent, and also the indefinite extent of the financial liabilities which would be incurred.

At the conclusion of the general debate the meeting discussed Article Three, relating to the proposed special provisions for the conveyance of pilgrims, coolies and such persons. It was decided to ask the sub-committee for a clear definition of "such persons."—Reuter.

SHIP SHAKEN.

THUNDERBOLT FALLS NEAR "SAI ON."

"HOT, FLAMING MASS."

Capt. Alex. Campbell, master of the s.s. "Sai On" reports that when passing Deep Bay at about 12.50 p.m. yesterday his ship ran into a heavy thunderstorm during which there was much vivid lightning. Suddenly a thunderbolt—a red hot flaming mass—fell into the sea. As it struck the water it exploded with a terrific crash, shaking the ship fore and aft, and nearly blinding all those watching it.

The ship's standard compass was found to have acquired two points of easterly error. Before the bolt fell the compass was correct.

FAIR TO SHOWERY.

"South winds, moderate; cloudy, fair to showery" is the official weather forecast till noon to-morrow.

A Chinese was sentenced to three months hard labour by Major Wilson this morning for stealing $14 from a passenger on the s.s. "Hydrangea."

Two gold rings worth $250 were reported by Mrs. Harmon of No. 20, The Peak to have been stolen from her bedroom some time between 12.30 and 1 p.m. yesterday.

COMING EAST.

Four British All-Metal Flying Boats.

FELIXSTOWE TO SINGAPORE.

Official Details of Proposed Air Force Flight.

POSSESS SPEED OF A MILE AND A HALF A MINUTE.

Official particulars regarding the all-steel British flying boats which are coming to Singapore have been released by the British Wireless Service.

Four boats, under the command of Group Capt. Brown Cave, will make the journey, flying around the coasts of India and calling at Australia before settling at Singapore, at which station they will be retained as part of the general air development of this Base.

Inquiries made locally indicate that at least one visit to Hong Kong may be expected from the flying boats.

MAY VISIT HONG KONG.

Rugby, yesterday.

Details are now available of the all-metal flying boats which are to be used on the Royal Air Force flight from Felixstowe to Singapore. Four machines are to make the journey and they will be under the command of Group Captain Brown Cave. The First of these supermarine Napier Southampton boats is now nearing completion, and it is hoped the start for Singapore will be possible about the middle of October. Stainless steel is used throughout in the construction of the hull, and this is not lighter than wood, but impervious to the action of sea water.

When fully laden and ready to set off, each of the flying boats will turn the scale at over nine tons. More than half of this will be made up of petrol and oil.

The flying boats have a speed of about a mile and a half a minute, and a range of 2,500 miles. Each is equipped with two Napier Lion engines and will have such maritime paraphernalia as anchors, foghorn and riding lights. A portion of the hull is to be fitted for the slinging of hammocks and used as sleeping quarters.

It will not be necessary for the planes to reach harbour each day, for unless the sea is exceptionally rough, they will be able to ride at anchor during the night.

On the journey out they will fly round the coasts of India before going on to Singapore. Here they will be met by units of the Australian Air Force, which will accompany them to Australia. After an extended cruise there they will return to Singapore, where they are to be based as part of the general air development for Imperial defence.—British Wireless Service.

SERVICE TO INDIA.

Extension Held Back By Persia.

That the extension of the British air service from Basrah to Karachi was being held back by Persia was the statement made by Air Vice-Marshal Sir Sefton Branker at a luncheon given by the Royal Colonial Institute.

Sir Sefton was reviewing recent progress in aviation, and said that Great Britain had lately embarked upon a regular service between Cairo and Basrah, and that we were only waiting to extend the service to India. At the moment, the extension was prevented because Persia had gone back on her undertaking, and objected to flying along the Persian Gulf. The route would be to Karachi, where the Indian Government was to take the responsibility of carrying on from Karachi to Calcutta and Rangoon. The route from Rangoon to Singapore would be the Imperial Government's responsibility, and it was hoped that the Australian Government would make itself responsible for the service between Singapore and Australia.

The African service from Nairobi had met with an initial setback, owing to the crashing of two machines, but it was hoped to get it going by August.

Safety in Aviation.

Safety in aviation had been greatly increased. Since 1919 there had been only four fatal accidents on regular British air routes, and since Christmas, 1924, they had covered 2,100,000 miles without scratching a passenger. "If you consider the French railways and the London streets," said Sir Sefton, "I think you will agree that aviation comes well out of the comparison." Reliability of machines had been greatly improved, and they were working up to the point when an aeroplane would do 1,500 hours work a year. He was recently shown a railway engine which had travelled 1,000,000 miles in forty-six years. The latest aircraft would travel 1,000,000 miles in six years.

The development of aviation lagged behind in Britain because we were a conservative nation and did not take kindly to new things, but our machines and pilots and mechanics were undoubtedly superior to those of any other country. In twenty years air travel would be as much a part of everyday civilised life as the telephone was to-day. The telephone started forty-six years ago, and after being much hampered at the start was indispensable to-day. Aviation started twenty-three years ago. It had got over its teething troubles, and one could scarcely imagine what it would mean to the civilised world in another twenty-three years. The nation which had the most efficient wintry and machines then would reap a rich reward.

Sir Sefton added that the non-stop flight to India had been postponed owing to the monsoon.

SACCO & VANZETTI.

LAST STAGES OF FAMOUS TRIAL.

FEELING IN PARIS.

Boston (Mass.), Yesterday. Governor Fuller has interviewed the few last witnesses in the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Vanzetti, who has broken his hunger strike after a fortnight's starvation, is allowed an extra glass of milk in the morning and is rapidly recovering strength, but Sacco still refuses all food. Police guards, as a precautionary measure, have been placed outside the residences of Judge Thayer, who tried the case, and Judge Rugg, who heard the appeal in anticipation of Governor Fuller's announcing the result of his investigations to-morrow.—Reuter's American Service.

Paris, Yesterday. Another demonstration against the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti was made by Socialists, sympathisers. The police were compelled to intervene. Numerous lights ensued and several revolver shots were fired by both sides. A number of people were injured and six arrests were made.—Reuter.

A collision occurred in Robinson Road at 6.20 p.m., yesterday when a motor cycle ridden by Mr. D. Thompson of the Dairy Farm Company collided with motor car No. 1010. Mr. Thompson was thrown heavily and sustained injuries which necessitated his removal to the Government Civil Hospital.

While removing a patient from Wellington Street yesterday afternoon, motor ambulance No. 269 skidded on the wet road when turning into D'Agullar Street and collided with a lamp post. The mudguard of the ambulance was badly damaged.

From the date of its organisation, the National City Bank found its services in demand and during the next century played an active part in the development of trade and industry and in assisting the Government's financial operations of that period. On May 15, 1925, Mr. Bower has an interview with the defendant who states that he is a British subject.

Levi & Co. was a private business of his own and that he had been carrying on the business since 1924. Mr. Bowen reports this to the plaintiff who had employed him as their

there is no doubt that at the time the contract was entered into, the plaintiffs only knew Levi and knew nothing about his partner Cohen, and made this contract as far as they were concerned with Levi.

A Deed of Partnership is produced by the defendant. It is in Spanish, and the partnership is styled "Una Sociedad Simple" which is translated into English as a "limited partnership" between R. Levi and Alberto Cohen. Cohen is to put Tls. 5,000 into the partnership and Levi his work and

Through its subsidiary the International Banking Corporation, the National City Bank started building a foreign organisation as early as 1902. Later, under the authority of the Federal Reserve Act, the bank adopted a policy of establishing its own branches in the more important foreign centres. At present, following their absorption early this year of their major branches of the International Banking Corporation, the bank has 104 branches located in the commercial and financial centres of twenty-three foreign countries, supplemented by 4,000 correspondents throughout the world.

A FAMILY NECESSITY.

Every family should be provided with Chamberlain's Pain Balm at all times. Sprains may be cured in much less time when promptly treated. Lamé back, lamé shoulders, pains in the side and chest and rheumatic pains are some of the diseases for which it is especially valuable. It can be purchased everywhere.

FIRST TURBINE STEAMER.

Presentation to the Science Museum.

The after part of the "Turbina," the first vessel to be propelled by steam turbine, was put on board a steamer at Newcastle for transport to the Science Museum at South Kensington, to which it has been presented by Sir Charles Parsons and the directors of the Parsons Marine Steam Turbine Company. The whole vessel was offered, but as it could not be accommodated for reasons of space, it has been cut in two, and the after portion, 45ft. in length, containing the engines and propellers is being placed in the museum.

The construction of the "Turbina," which had a length of 100ft., a beam of 9ft., a draught of 3 ft., and a displacement of 44 1/2 tons, was completed at Wallsend in 1894, and the vessel was in the first instance fitted with a single compound turbine engine of the radial type, which is also being presented to the museum. With this engine, which drove a single shaft, various arrangements and pitches of propellers were tested, but the results compared with the power registered by a transmission dynamometer showed in every case a very low propeller efficiency. This original turbine was therefore removed, and replaced by the existing machinery, which consists of three separate turbines—high-pressure, intermediate, and low-pressure—driving three shafts—starboard, port, and centre respectively. On the centre shaft there is also an astern turbine. This change enabled a speed of 34 1/2 knots to be obtained, and the "Turbina," darting in and out of the lines in defiance of the patrol boats, was one of the most conspicuous objects at the Naval Review in 1897. The main propelling machinery developed 2,000 h.p. The weights of the ship were as follows:—Machinery, boiler, screws, shafting, tanks, &c., 22 tons; hull complete, 15 tons; coal and water 7 1/2 tons.

U.S. SHIPPING.

"A DARK PICTURE."

Advocates of Government aid in building up American shipping received strong support from Senator Wesley Jones, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, who declared that without Government help the American merchant marine would completely vanish from the high seas. Senator Jones drew a dark picture of the present state of the commercial fleet, and declared that not a single vessel was being built to-day in American shipyards for overseas trade. Without a subsidy private capital would not give the country a mercantile marine, he said, and as Congress would not grant a subsidy the Government must furnish money to build ships, and, directly or indirectly, operate them. The adoption of such a plan would demonstrate to foreign competitors that they had a rival they could neither defeat nor destroy. Mr. Jones declared, and he and the majority of the Senators on his committee were in favour of it. Specifically he advocated a revolving fund of $25,000,000 to build up to-date ships, with the provision of an annual replacement sum of $5,000,000. The alternative to some such plan, Senator Jones declared, was a revelation to the condition in which America found herself when she entered the war. If the Government had paid out $5,000,000 a year before the war, she would have had an adequate merchant marine when the war broke out. As things were, the Government had been obliged to spend more than $500,000,000 in constructing a fleet of ships which were now rotting in their docks or had been sold for a song. While the country now had little to show for its $500,000,000, the American people were paying about $3,000,000 annually as interest on the cost of the ships, and would continue to do so for fifty years, Senator Jones concluded, and the money would build no new ships and would not even repair the old ones.

UNITY OF THE POWERS.

A most useful contribution to the subject of unity among the Powers in China and the defence of Treaty rights was recently made by Mr. G. B. Rea, Editor of the "Far Eastern Review," before the National Foreign Trade Council Convention at Detroit. Whilst he submits an earnest plea for the protection of American lives and property, he makes out a strong

case for unity and co-operation amongst the Powers. In a convincing manner he demonstrates that no one Power can stand alone, that their interests are not only identical but interdependent, and that if one suffers
all must suffer from the antiforeign movement and from the sheer inability of the various Chinese factions to govern.

According to Mr. Rea America's exports to China total $100,000-000, of which from 30 to 40 per cent. are sold through Japanese firms with offices in America, whilst another 10 to 15 per cent. passes through British hands. Japan buys from America 360,000,000 yen of cotton. The textile industry is the basis of her export trade. If her trade with China collapses, American cotton growers will lose a valuable market. If Japanese and British investments in China are ruined and American firms are forced to leave the country, America's trade with China will drop at least 50 per cent. and America's market in Japan will dwindle to an alarming extent. "Another financial crisis in Britain or Japan," declares Mr. Rea, "will shake the very foundation of world credit,
dislocate world trade, and compel America to finance these nations
in order to protect her own interests." Thus does he establish his case regarding the inter-dependence of the Powers in China.
And thus does he score when he urges co-operation amongst the Powers in the policy of protecting foreigners and upholding Treaty rights in China.

Remarking that the slogan of the Convention which he addressed was "greater national prosperity through foreign trade," he asks: "What will it profit you if you increase your trade in one part of the world and lose it in another? What will you gain by a few more exportations to Latin America or Soviet Russia if you lose out in China? If the purchasing power of Great Britain and Japan, your best customers, is curtailed?" After all, neither American nor British merchants
are in China for their health:
their mission is trade, and to conduct that mission successfully
they must have the fullest possible protection. If that protection cannot be given by the Chinese then obviously it must be given by the Powers acting in unity. That is the only possible angle, and the Editor of the "Far Eastern Review" has performed a distinct service to the cause of unity by emphasising it so strongly before a gathering of his fellow-citizens in Detroit.

Eating and Working.

That the European's mode of life in the Far East and not indulgence in alcohol is the cause of nearly all his troubles, mental and physical, is the interesting theory advanced by a writer in the "Malay Mail." To the doors of alcohol, of course, are these troubles invariably laid, and it is not uncommon for people, other than taipans, when a young fellow is imposed either physically or mentally, to conjure up visions of that one whisky and soda taken as a "pick-me-up" which has led to many others, with disastrous results to the aforesaid young fellow's health and pocket. In many instances alcohol really is to blame; but, as the writer points out, not always. He outlines the average day's activities of a European who works in an office, and emphasises that in all that time (from 7 a.m. until 10 p.m.) the man has not rested either his mind or his digestion, has eaten a heavy meal in the hottest part of the day, and has ended it by going to sleep on a substantial dinner.
As a result, young men in Malaya,
after a year, lose their clear skin
and bright eyes and are quite unconsciously the victims of indigestion. Depressed and irritable, they take the advice of older men and try a "stengah" or a gin "pahit"
to cheer themselves up—with excellent temporary effect. More depression and irritability; and more alcohol, follow, and so commences a distinctly vicious circle.
The blame is thrown at the whole system of town life, and the writer says it is past understanding why British methods are adopted by Europeans in the Far East instead of them modelling their lives on those of Europeans in India. Asiatics eat at 10 a.m. and 6 p.m., and these are suggested as the probable ideal hours. Their adoption would, of course, interfere with ordinary office routine, so, in the interests of the European out-here, the writer suggests that working hours should be altered,
not lessened, so that meals may be taken at the hours indicated.
The point, as we have said, is an interesting one, and we trust to return to it later.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THAT FERRY.

(To the Editor of the "China Mail.")
Sir,—You newspaper men are,
surely, the limit when you criticise water side matters, in this case, the Star Ferry. At least be constructive and indicate
what is your idea of a safely constructed landing stage and, further, what are the more important reforms you envisage.
What is wrong with the reconstructed landing stage on the Hong Kong side. With regard to the Kowloon side where would you have the Ferry landing other than where it is and if it has to remain where it is what would you recommend doing with it.
Just scratch your head a bit and remember that its antiquated surroundings are a wrecked public pier on the one side, on the other the architectural monstrosity
of a railway station, that the pier is practically embayed by the Kowloon Wharves, that there is a very strong tidal current round
the point and that the poor unfortunate coxswains have everything against them when trying to get alongside (not effect a landing, I hope).
Ne sutor ultra crepidam.
Yours, etc.,

SOLDIER IN DISTRESS.

(To the Editor of the "China Mail.")
Sir,—I hope this comes to the notice of the specimen of humanity who refused succor to a poor soldier in distress outside Homeville Boarding House last evening around five o'clock. In spite of the efforts of a lady living nearby, who asked this man to help the lad, he merely walked away into the boarding house leaving his fellow countryman on the ground with crowds of Chinese rapidly gathering. The two Indian watchmen did help the soldier and they showed an example which the Homeville
resident might have followed.

Two Chinese richa coolies dumped the lad out with no small force then ran away leaving him
unable to move or help himself.
Whether he was drunk or merely sick I cannot say.
There were no police present at the time, in fact except for the police passing on their way to their duty there seldom are any police in the neighbourhood.
At last a young Chinese took the soldier away in his motor car
and again an example was shown to the Homeville dweller.
Because I admire the boys who are wearing khaki and because I have worn it myself, I bring this to the notice of the public.
Yours, etc.,
SAMARITAN.

HONG KONG TROOPS.

PUNJABIS ARRIVAL IN SHANGHAI.

The following letter appears in the "N. C. D. News" (Shanghai):
"Sir,—I don't like rushing into print, and without in any way
wishing to minimise the services
given by the Glosters and Durhams, I think it should not be forgotten that the first British troops to arrive here were the Punjabis from Hong Kong, who came up at very short notice by the "Glenogle" and "Empress of Asia," and very glad we were to see them.
Copies of the "North China Daily News" go to Hong Kong and their C.O. and officers might think we had very short memories
on reading the eulogies to the two white battalions without any mention of theirs.
Honour to whom honour is due."

I am, etc.,
Resident.

Shanghai, July 26, 1927.

LODGER & FRIENDS.

ROBBERY CHARGE MADE BY WOMAN.

At the Kowloon Magistracy
yesterday, an armed robbery in which five men were alleged to have taken part was described to Mr. W. Schofield. In the dock were two men charged with complicity in the robbery.
According to police evidence, a lodger of the house went out early on the morning of July 20 and did not return until the evening
when he came with two men.
Later two others came and were admitted on the understanding that they were the lodger's friends. They all sat talking on the verandah for some time, and then one of the men asked the principal tenant for some tea.
While she was getting the tea in her cubicle, one of the men held her there with a dagger, and driven into another cubicle in which were a man and his wife.
All three were bound and gagged
with rubber balls. The robbers, with the assistance of the lodger
then ransacked the flat and stole some jewellery. The principal was able later to release herself and went for the police. Subsequently the two accused were arrested and identified by the principal tenant
who said that they were well known to her having been to the house several times to visit the lodger.

Further hearing of the case
was adjourned until to-day.

SIKH TROUBLES.

FIVE SUMMONED FOR ASSAULT.

In Major C. Wilson's Court
yesterday afternoon, five Sikhs
were summoned by another Sikh with assault. It was alleged that the defendants used sticks on the complainant. The attack was made on the complainant on July 14 when he was severely injured in the head and was unconscious for three days in the hospital.
Another Sikh who was with the complainant at the time of the assault and was himself injured
in the head gave corroborative evidence. The assault it was stated, was a sequel to a quarrel between some Sikhs in May last,
when the complainant and several others were bound over to keep the peace. The complainant was on that occasion also fined $100 by Mr. R. E. Lindell for the possession of a lethal weapon.
Major Willson gave an adjournment until next Tuesday, the defendants being allowed bail in the sum of $500 each.

M. MOISEVITCH.

RECITALS AT THE THEATRE ROYAL.

M. Benno Moisevitch, the world renowned pianist, is due
here to-morrow by the s.s.
"Deyanba" and will give recitals at the Theatre Royal on August 6 and 8, commencing at 9.15 p.m.
"I never attempt to play anything that does not appeal to me," so says the Russian pianist who, under Strok's direction is to play at the Theatre Royal on the above day, "because to do so would be not giving my best,
which means ceasing to be an artist."

Of the much abused word "interpretation" he declares there is no standard interpretation for a piece of music. It constantly varies with the performers'
moods. He himself, he admits,
can not play the same piece exactly the same way twice, that is,
consciously. "Without individuality there is little of interest in an artist. That is why I am always striving to convey what the music means to me."

P'RAPS—P'RAPSNOT!

Specialist (to small girl, who is crying because she has overheard
that she is to have her appendix taken out): "Don't cry, Betty,
it won't hurt you, I promise you."
Betty (still crying): "I know;
b-but it will leave a n-nasty mark."
Specialist: "Oh, well, no one will see that."
Betty: "But, b-but fashions do change so."

A certain Frenchman was in a barber's shop one day when one of his creditors entered, and immediately started demanding
money, creating quite a scene.
The Frenchman, who was lathered
ready for shaving, replied:—
"Won't you wait till I'm shaved?"
"Oh, yes," said the dunning
one.

Whereupon the debtor, making the barber a witness of the conversation, immediately wiped the lather from his face, and wore a beard till the day of his death.

We sympathise with the goalkeeper who nimbly attempted to climb out of harm's way during the progress of a recent match.
No doubt he felt he was blocking the opening a little, which wasn't fair from his point of view.
Rumour says he will keep goal
from behind the net in future.—

"Your doctor prescribed a change of climate. Aren't you going abroad?"
"No, I'm just stopping in London."

"Why?"
"Because the climate changes
here more than anywhere else."

A popular member of a Lancashire bowling club came into money and took up golf. Meeting one of his old friends one day
he took him out for a day at the golf club. Next evening at the bowling club the friend was asked how he had fared.
"Well," he said, "ah'd a right
good time w' George, but eh lads, that golf game is t' funniest as ever ah seen, knockin' little ball
all over t' shop w' sticks! Ay, an' there was times when we was
as much as two miles from t'
bar!"

Tomkins: "As you know,
Jones, I am by way of being an anti-motorist, but I must say I have just seen a novel and moving sight."

Jones: "What was that?"
"I saw quite a number of motorists slow down and deliberately turn aside in order to avoid running over an animal in the road."

Jones: "Ah, so they are not all inhuman! What animal was it?"
"A circus elephant."

The Villain: "Ha, ha! You shall be mine, my beauty, by fair means or foul!"

The Heroine (absent-mindedly): "Yes; of course, it's all right
so long as you have means!"

Two women were passing a butcher's shop. A large pig's head lying on a marble slab with a lemon thrust in its mouth caught their eyes.

"Oh!" said one. "I'm glad I saw that; it had nearly slipped
my memory!"

"What had?" asked the other.
"Why, that I promised Uncle George to buy him a new pipe for his birthday!"

Mother, father, and Willie were in mid-Channel. It was rather rough. Father did not feel too well, neither did mother.

Mother was also driven to distraction by the mischievous antics of the boy.

Finally, she appealed to her husband:

"Father, do speak to Willie,"
and in a very faint voice father said, "How are you, Willie?"

Builder's Foreman: "Excuse me, but are you the lady that's singing?"

Miss Trill: "Yes, I was singing. Why?"

Builder's Foreman: "Might I
ask you not to hold on to that top note so long, because my men have knocked off work twice already, mistakin' it for the dinner whistle."

GOOD FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY.

Mother always give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for "croupy" colic,
colds, difficult breathing, bronchial and influenza coughs. It is good for the little ones and grown ups too and every one knows it contains no narcotics. Sold everywhere.

JAPANESE PEERS.

MUST'N'T ELOPE WITH FILM QUEENS.

Tokyo, July 15.

Eloping with moving picture beauties in Japan may be all right for a commoner, but a peer must exercise more restraint if he wishes to retain his title.

This ruling has been handed down by the Imperial household department in connection with the case of Ryochi Takeuchi, son of Baron Takeuchi, who scandalized the natives by eloping with Miss Yoshiko Okada, a comedy cinema star.

The Imperial household ruled that young Takeuchi would not be permitted to inherit his father's title and that the title must lapse unless the father disowns the son and adopts some other young man as his heir.—"Associated Press."

PRESIDENT OF MEXICO ORDERS RELEASE.

Mexico City, July 15.

President Calles ordered the immediate release of all Catholic priests and laymen imprisoned during the last six months on charges of sedition and conspiracy against the State.

Federal agents, following an exhaustive investigation of conditions throughout Mexico, reported to President Calles yesterday that revolutionary activities had virtually ceased everywhere. This report prompted the order releasing Catholic prisoners.

The approaching election is also thought to have influenced the administration of the direction of conciliation and clemency.—"United Press."

THE LONG ARM.

The Law in Film At The World.

The prison doors opened slowly, reluctantly, and out walked Mike Horgan, a free man. Followed weeks of struggle to earn an honest living, the heart-breaking search for a job, hounded by detectives, but happy within in the love of Nancy Preston, widow of his prison pal, and her young son, Busby. Then came privation, persecution and disappointment, till at last—a job. Then suddenly a robbery, a murder, and a "frame up." Once more the prison doors swung open. But this time—the

REVUES FOR KOWLOON.

Miss "Jo" Wrenn, a charming member of the new Our Cabaret company of ten London artists, which is to give a series of revues in the Star Theatre, starting next Saturday, August 6, at 9.30 p.m.

rest is the story of "Nancy Preston Vs. The People," which is showing at the World Theatre for the last time to-day, at 6.15 and 9.20 only, as stated in our advertising columns. "The People Vs. Nancy Preston" is notable alike for the exciting story and for the acting of the two principal players, Marguerite de la Motte as Nancy Preston, and John Bowers as the convict who strives to go straight.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.

Last Showing of "Merry Widow."

The experiment made by the Queen's Theatre in holding revival nights of pictures which have won special favour in Hong Kong is proving a marked success, judging from the welcome given yesterday to the first of the pictures to be screened again, "The Merry Widow." Erich Von Stroheim's brilliant screen version of the famous stage success, "The Merry Widow" will be shown in the Queen's Theatre for the last time this evening, and such is the fine acting of Mae Murray and John Gilbert in the leading roles, the splendid settings and the ever delightful music, that the farewell performances are likely to be as crowded as any yet seen in Hong Kong for this great production.

STAR THEATRE.

"A Woman of the World."

Easily the best medium Pola Negri has had to date, from a strictly story point of view, the Paramount success, "A Woman of the World," which will be screened in the Star Theatre for the last time this evening, claims attention alike for its note of drama and for its light comedy vein. Pola Negri plays the part of a heart-broken countess who becomes the centre of a series of unusual events in an American small town. The picture is full of interest, the director having made a skilful blend of the comic and the dramatic.

RADICAL COUNTESS.

GIVEN STATE FUNERAL IN DUBLIN.

Dublin, July 17.

Thousands viewed the body of Countess Markievicz, radical Republican leader, as it lay in state in Rotunda Hall to-day.

An impressive state funeral under the auspices of the Sinn Féin was held before the burial. Eamonn de Valera and 40 Republican deputies were present at the services and followed the hearse to the cemetery. High church and government officials from all counties of the Free State attended.—"United Press."

HACKED-OFF LEG.

MUTILATED PRISONER LOOKS ON.

INSURANCE FRAUD CHARGE.

An amputated leg preserved in chemicals which has hitherto been believed to be missing was produced in court in Vienna in the trial in which Emil Marek, an engineer-inventor, who is charged with fraud and slander, is accused of having deliberately hacked off his left leg with an axe after insuring himself against disablement for £80,000.

Accused with him are his wife, Martha, aged 29; her sister, Paula Lowenstein, 32, charged with aiding and abetting him; and Karl Mraz, hospital attendant at Modling and his wife, Marie Mraz, charged with slander.

An intensely dramatic scene occurred when two heavy blocks of timber were shown in court which Marek was said to have been shaping with a short-handled axe with a broad, curved blade (also produced) when, as he claims, the accident happened by which he almost severed his leg, which was later amputated in hospital.

Marek was required to describe exactly the position he occupied, squatting with his legs apart, and how the axe fell.

He persisted in declaring that he only felt frightful agony, screamed, and fainted, and that his injured leg was resting on the block when he recovered consciousness, with his wife, mother-in-law and sister-in-law round him.

Marek, in an exhaustive account of his career, said he insured for £20,000 against death and £80,000 against disablement. The premium was nearly £200 a year for the accident policy, payable in instalments every second month. He paid the first instalment, about £30, and received a policy on June 11, 1925. The accident occurred on the following morning, and his wife made a claim next day.

Marek made eloquent professions of his passionate love for his wife and the perfect happiness of their marriage. Counsel for the prosecution is seeking to prove that Marek performed mutilation for the purpose of providing his wife with wealth and sharing her happiness after a rapid recovery.

A COLLEGE GARDEN.

Oxford is so beautiful under the blue skies of early summer that it is even possible to forgive the February floods. It is a city of green and gold; all the trees are in full leaf; the river meadows are ablaze with yellow buttercups, and countless laburnums are dropping gold along the tree-bordered roads of North Oxford, writes a correspondent to the "Times."

The college gardens are islands of quiet in the busy sea of Oxford life. They recall Matthew Arnold's phrase, "a well-remembered word of quietness," for in Oxford, as nowhere else, one finds business with a background of leisure. Tranquillity, perhaps, would be the last word an undergraduate would use to describe the whirl of his activities; yet he knows how to laze on the Chervell on summer afternoons. And even though Oxford grows fuller and the traffic more congested every year, it is always possible to step aside from the main stream into quiet byways, or to get a glimpse of an old garden through an archway. Another certain way to find tranquillity is to pass up the steps of the Bodleian library into the quiet world of books.

But it is in the college gardens that this central peace is most surely found, and, in particular, in the garden of St. John's. Here are wide spaces, greenness, quiet, the beauty of grey stone and bright flowers, also the friendly comradeship of birds. Each part of it has its special appeal. To some, the grey stonework of Laud's garden front, with the flowering clematis and wisteria, is its greatest charm. From a seat under the wall there is a vista of green turf backed by tall trees—chestnuts, copper-beech, and flex. Here and there a student sits surrounded by his books, but there are no loud voices heard in this tranquil spot. In some moods the elm-bordered lawn at the back of the garden is most attractive; it is always cool and shady; few flowers are seen, except the white drift of daisies, which have a special licence here, though they dare not so much as raise their heads on the velvet turf where the archers deposit themselves in view of the garden front.

GOING FOR A HOLIDAY?

Don't forget to include Pinkettes in your remedy kit. Constipation and biliousness are both formidable contributing factors to sea sickness and train sickness. The judicious use of Pinkettes, the gentle little laxatives and liver regulators, will do much to prevent them, also to keep you well, while away. Of chemists everywhere, or post free 60 cents the vial from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kingston Road, Shanghai. PINKETTES KEEP YOU WELL.

Major C. Willson yesterday fined a Chinese $100 or two months' hard labour for the unlawful possession of 425 poppy lottery tickets. He said that they were left with him for safe keeping. The tickets were seized by the police when they raided the accused's house in Wellington Street on Monday.

John Benjamin Thomas, the 15-year-old boy charged in the U.S. Court, at Shanghai, on several counts involving housebreaking and grand larceny, pleaded guilty before Judge Purdy. The youth of the boy calling for leniency, his Honour deferred sentence for 30 days until the Court should have had time to communicate with the State Department at Washington regarding the feasibility of sending the lad back to America, where he could be placed in a reformatory or similar institution.

A mild sensation has been caused in the South African Parliament by the action of the Senate in rejecting the Precious Stones Bill, the third reading of which it passed but in such an amended form that, according to the mine representatives, the Bill has been practically wrecked. The diamond interests fear the effect on world markets and on the price of stones. The Union Government have definitely refused the Senate's amendments, and the latter will now have to decide whether it will abide by its amendments, reject the Bill as it stands, or give way.

Two Chinese who had in their possession 12,000 poppy lottery tickets worth $15,000 were yesterday charged before Major C. Willson at the Central Magistracy. A Chinese detective, as the result of information received, stopped the two accused as they were coming ashore from a scavenging boat, and the tickets were found tied round the accused's waists. One of the men attempted to escape capture by jumping into the harbour, but was subsequently secured. The Magistrate fined the accused $250 each, or, in default, three months' jail.

An important treaty has lately been ratified between Siam and Indo-China and will be in force for 10 years. It provides for a neutral area along the banks of the River Khong, which forms the boundary between the two countries, and this area will be closed to soldiers though open to the police. Only unarmed aeroplanes will be allowed to land. Any criminal arrested by the authorities will have to be handed over to the nation to which he belongs and both countries agree to improve all communications. No camps or aerodromes will be allowed in the neutral area.

Owing, it is thought, to the failure of a nullah in Waterloo Road to hold the volume of water that poured down the hillside in Kowloon during the rainstorm shortly after mid-day yesterday, Nathan Road (between President Buildings and the Orient Tobacco Factory) was flooded to a considerable depth by water pouring down from Dundas street and Waterloo Road. Many Chinese shops and buildings were flooded, also a row of houses near the Ho Mun Tin railway bridge and Gascon's Motor Agency premises. The floods quickly subsided with the cessation of the rainstorm, and the flooded premises were cleared.

"Whether it will be merged in the Holly Bush Tavern or not I don't know," he said.

A big fire broke out at the 4½ mile, Klang-rd., says the "Malay Mail," when a private smoke-house, containing a large quantity of rubber, was completely gutted. At 7.20 a.m. the fire brigade, under Mr. H. Lloyd, were at practice when they received the call from the Petaling police station, and within a short time arrived at the scene at the junction of the Sungai Besi and Klang roads. The building was blazing fiercely and the brigade, securing their water supply from the river, got the flames under control by 8.30 a.m. and succeeded in saving the shed. The damage is roughly estimated at over $2,000. The fire is said to have originated from one of the internal combustion engines.

LAWN BOWLS.

Stirring Finishes in the League.

TAIKOO'S "DOUBLE" DRAW.

Changes in Second Division Prospects.

[By "Short Head".]

Last Saturday the feature of the matches in the Lawn Bowls League was the number of exciting finishes. At the Valley the Craigengower C.C. gained a couple of useful points at the expense of the Civil Service C.C., the latter being now second from the bottom with four points for eight matches against the Kowloon Cricket Club's two points for nine games. Another slip by the Civil Servants and a win for the K.C.C. would see both Clubs fighting to escape relegation to the Second Division. As the Civil Service cannot win Second Division honours, nor yet finish at the bottom of that Division, they would be well advised to strengthen the first team.

Against the Craigengower C.C. on Saturday it is true that they were up on two rinks and only lost by five all over, but their position is now too precarious to run any more risks of losing points.

A keen fight was witnessed between Basa's rink and Oswick's, the verdict going to the former by three shots. Pendered was more successful against Omar, whom he beat by five points, but Deakin found himself seven shots to the bad against Rumjahn, who gathered in a six at the fifth head. Pendered "collected" a six at the ninth head and a four in the tenth head, which made all the difference in the result on this rink.

Police Triumph at Kowloon.

In writing last Friday I remarked that the Police would start favourites against the Kowloon Cricket Club, even although the match took place on the latter's green. They justified this prediction by winning on all three rinks, and finishing with a credit balance of 16 shots. The K.C.C. teams could not be characterised as representative of their real strength, but doubtless they will be content at the end of the season if the second string win the championship of that Division. Moss's rink on Saturday beat Gibson's by seven shots, but the play was closer than the score indicates. Indeed, the art of placing the jack made all the difference, especially on a partially heavy green. It is surprising how few leads place the jack to suit the green or even their own play. Time and again many of them place the jack just where their opponents can score most, and thus do many rinks go down! Mair's rink was successful over Overly's by one shot only, thanks to a six gained by Overly in the ninth head. Heavy scoring was witnessed in the third rink, where West beat Pile by eight shots—31-23. Pile had two fives on the fourth and twentieth heads, whilst West secured a six on the twelfth head.

A Draw at Tai Koo.

The best finish of the day was witnessed at Tai Koo where the Kowloon Bowling Green Club shared the points. Wetherapoon went down to W. Macfarlane by four shots, even although he scored a five at the eleventh head. This advantage was short-lived, as Macfarlane scored a six in the very next head. Then, from being up ten shots at the sixteenth head Macfarlane could finish only four up—25-21.

An equally stern struggle was witnessed between Wallace's and W. Russell's teams. The latter led most of the way but in the last five heads Wallace scored 4, 1, 8, 3, 1—13 in all—and finished five shots to the good. Quite a good recovery!

It was left to Morrison and Holland, who were the last to finish, to provide the thrills. Morrison scored a four at the sixth head and a five at the eleventh head, whilst Holland got a five at the fourteenth head. In the final head Morrison lay one but Holland trailed the jack and lay four. Morrison was chaffingly challenged to "lock up his tools to do something great." Hence his last word "jinked" through half a dozen front bowls in a most marvellous manner and lay third. Thus Holland won the game by one shot, which enabled his side to tie.

East Point Surprised.

Few, if any, expected the East Point Recreation Club to be beaten on their own green by the Craigengower C.C., but the latter won on two rinks and drew in the next, winning by a margin of 14 shots. McKellar's rink could only draw with Sellwood's—18 all—but McTavish went down to the bad against Rodriguez. The result may impair East Point's chances for the championship, as they have now lost four matches as compared with two each by the K.C.C. and Tai Koo and three by the K.B.G.C.

Tai Koo's Second Draw.

As the first Tai Koo team drew, so did the second team when they met the Club de Recreio at King's Park. The best performance was that of Souza's rink which was down eight shots at the eleventh head and yet came out on top by two shots over McKennie's rink. Had the Club de Recreio performed their usual stunt of running away with the game at the start they would undoubtedly have won. As it was they started very badly, being down 10-19 at the fifth head, 19-41 down at the tenth head, and 25-47 down at the fifteenth head. In eventually running their opponents to a tie—60 all—they did remarkably well and fully earned the division of the points. J. Ribeiro beat Young seven shots, but A. Ribeiro could muster only 18 against Dinnes's 27, the latter including two fives.

Civil Service Win.

A good turn to the K.C.C. and the Tai Koo R.C. was done by the Civil Service C.C. in beating the Kowloon Bowling Green Club. In last Friday's notes I remarked that if Macfarlane was drawn against Massey the Civil Service would win, and they did so, even although Massey went down by seven shots. Macfarlane had no fewer than twelve ones and led at the fourteenth head by 17-2, thereafter going to pieces, the final score being 20-13. Thus Massey scored 11 whilst his opponent scored only three. Taylor, with a weaker rink than usual, went down to Warren's team by 24-19. Here, again, the home side made a good recovery after the tea interval as Warren was leading 22-10 at the fifteenth head and scored only two shots more. The weakest Civil Service rink was pitted against the weakest visiting rink, but yet the former were strong enough to have quite a respectable "kill," Alderman downing Dixon by 25-6.

With Tai Koo only drawing and the East Point and Bowling Green Club getting defeated, the position of the K.C.C., who had no fixture last Saturday, is enhanced. The latter are not yet out of the wood as they meet the East Point this Saturday, and even on their own green they cannot count their chickens before they are hatched!

Skips' Records.

As the outcome of last Saturday's games the only undefeated skips now are:—

First Division: W. Macfarlane (K.B.G.C.), seven wins and one draw; and Drummond (Tai Koo), one win.

Other good performances are:—

First Division: Wallace (T.R.C.), seven wins and one defeat; Brown (K.D.R.C.), five wins, one defeat; two draws; Lapsley (K.D.R.C.), five wins and one defeat; Pendered (C.S.C.C.), six wins and two defeats; Basa (C.C.C.), six wins, four defeats, and one draw; Cullen (K.D.R.C.), three wins and one defeat.

Second Division: McTavish (E.P.R.C.), nine wins and two defeats; Massey (C.S.C.C.), seven wins and four defeats; Macfarlane (K.B.G.C.), eight wins and one defeat; Warren (K.B.G.C.), six wins, two defeats, two draws, Lammert (K.C.C.), seven wins, and three defeats.

FAMOUS SIRE.

HURRY ON WORTH £20,000 A YEAR.

THREE DERBY WINNERS.

Unconscious of his greatness, oblivious to the fact that he is the father of three Derby winners—Captain Cuttle, Coronach and Call Boy—Hurry On thrust a velvet muzzle into my hand and then lifted his head to crunch the sugar he had found there.

Shaw, the stud groom, was standing next to Hurry On, his eyes beaming pride and admiration. The big horse swung his fine head round towards him inquiringly, as though suggesting more sugar. He was not disappointed.

Unbeaten As a 3-Year-Old.

"You old rascal!" Shaw burred affectionately. "Well, he has made a great name for himself, hasn't he?" he said as though wishing to hear someone from the outside world speak in praise of his pet.

"He has given his sons something to beat, both on the course and as a sire. Hurry On never ran as a two-year-old, but as a three-year-old he was unbeaten. He won six races over all sorts of distances up to 2½ miles easily."

"But that was during the war, and so the public cannot be expected to remember what a great horse he was." If he had been running in an ordinary year he would have been far more familiar to the average man than he now is. Everybody knows him by name, but not so many know what he looks like.

£150,000 in Six Years.

Hurry On is 14 years old, and there are few horses of his age at the stud whose records can begin to compare with his. His stock have only been seen on racecourses for six years, and yet besides the three Derbys, they have won the One Thousand Guinea twice—and the St. Leger once.

Yet in his great roomy loose-box the huge chestnut strolled about sniffing the straw, nosing the stud groom, behaving just as though he were a pet hack known only to those who give him sugar.

Last season, including the Derby and St. Leger, his stock won £59,100. In the six seasons his stock have run they have credited him with nearly £150,000, and that includes the first year, when only one of his progeny was running.

Already this year, while he has been roaming happily in the gorgeous country which surrounds the Lavington Park stud, attended by a groom who is devoted to him, his sons and daughters have won more than £30,000, again triumphing against the best of their age in the Derby and One Thousand Guinea.

Up to the end of last season his offspring had won 136 races in six seasons. Neither the great Tetrarch, Phalaris (Lord Derby's fine horse), nor any of the other stallions of his generation has anything like so good a classic record as this big pet, who was so big and raw that he could not be trained to run as a two-year-old.

Speed, Strength, Stamina.

At present Hurry On is alone at the Lavington Park stud, for there are three of them on different corners of Lord Woolvington's splendid estate. Next year he will be joined by Captain Cuttle and Coronach, of whom so much is expected. It is a curious thing that Hurry On's very first foal was Captain Cuttle, a Derby winner!

It is interesting, too, to notice that, although he is so tremendous in size and was so late in reaching his full powers on the racecourse, he was a horse of tremendous speed as well as strength and stamina. And his offspring seem to be endowed with the same qualities. Only last week Call Boy won the Derby in the record time of 2 min. 34.2 sec. The following day, in the Coronation Cup, which is run over exactly the same distance and course, Coronach won from Embargo and Fox-law in even faster time than the Derby record—2 min. 34 sec.—though it has to be remembered that he is a year older than Call Boy. Coronach's time for the St. Leger was the fastest on record—3 min. 13.5 sec.

Apart from his value to those who own his stock, Hurry On is a considerable wage-earner himself. At a fee of 400 guineas, his annual earnings are approximately £20,000.

Never Ill.

Watching him and talking about him with the grooms' left one little doubt of his quality. Never has he been ill, never has he given trouble, and as a sire there is none to beat him—44 of 49 mares last season had fine healthy foals.

FAR EAST GAMES.

CHINESE ARRIVE FROM ALL PARTS.

Sons of Chinese overseas are trying to come back to China to participate in the coming Far Eastern Olympiad. In addition to boys from Honolulu, who have already arrived at Hong Kong to qualify themselves by joining the South China A.A., and a number of others from the Straits Settlements, Lum Pao-wah, a noted Chinese tennis player from Australia, is returning to Hong Kong by the s.s. "Tango Maru." Coming with Mr. Lum are four football players returning from the Australian tour.

The South China Athletic Association will be "at home" to friends to meet the All-Around Chinese Amateur Athletes from Honolulu, on Friday afternoon, August 5, from 4.30 to 5.30.

A long list of entertainments is being mapped for the visitors. Among those prepared to meet them are the Bathing Clubs at North Point, the Chinese Recreation Club, the Chinese Y.M.C.A., the president and the vice-president of the South China Athletic Association, and other Chinese organisations.

The full list of athletes follows: Clarence Chang, president of All-Chinese Amateur Athletes; Mattie Chang, Yun Fong-ching, Herbert Chung, En Yin-chung, Chun Cheu, Kenneth Hee, Archie Ho, Abe Liu, Edward F. Low, Nelson Kau, K. C. Lum, Lai Yee, Charles Lum, Ah Kong-pung, Afo Pung, Peter Yee, Arthur Yee, A. C. Yee, Young Kam-yuen, S. U. Wong, Chow Young.

The groom closed the door on his mighty pet and I drove between fields dotted with fume-mares and their new-born foals most of them sons and daughters of Hurry On. Near-by was a herd of some 15 goats of all ages and shapes. Lord Marcus Beresford had recommended Lord Woolvington to keep them grazing with the mares; for it has long been believed that goats eat certain grasses that are bad for brood mares. Stud-groom Shaw smiles at the idea, but the goats are still there.—F. M. in "Evening News."

SEVEN RULES.

PHILOSOPHY OF DIVORCE COURT JUDGE.

Seven rules for a happy marriage are offered by Judge Joseph Sabath, of Chicago, who has presided over no fewer than 22,000 divorce trials.

"There must be rules for every game," says Judge Sabath, "and the matrimonial game will be smoother if you remember that in a sense you are being reincarnated; that you are beginning a new life, assimilating a new viewpoint, entering a new sphere."

The following seven rules in the judge's opinion contain the essence of a successful marriage: 1. Keep in step with your partner's mind, body and soul.

2. Remember that vulgarity and successful marriage are mortal enemies.

3. Compromise is the antidote that destroys the germ of divorce.

4. To have mothers-in-law is fortunate, but to live with them is dangerous, and to criticise them is fatal.

5. Find out your beloved's ideas of matrimonial ethics before the wedding; then make them the basis of your love life.

6. Park your past at the altar—and never go back to claim it.

7. Courtship is the preparatory school for the college of matrimony. The real study of the art of love begins on the honeymoon and lasts a lifetime.

DEWDROP TO STOP TRAM.

ELECTRIC WONDER: MAKING SHALLOWS WORK.

Catching a burglar by means of his own shadow.

Automatically turning off the fuel supply of oil or gas fires when the flame is accidentally extinguished.

Controlling the temperature of every form of furnace and oven. Stopping a train with the aid of a dewdrop.

These are some of the extraordinary possibilities of a new current-controlling device, the invention of a 23-year-old American engineer, details of which have just reached London.

It is so sensitive that it can be operated by the approach of the hand, a drop of water, a ray of sunlight, or the flame of a match.

Its chief use will be in the operation of automatic control for electrical circuits, but it is claimed by the inventor, Mr. D. D. Knowles, research engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, that the new control is capable of many applications in addition to those mentioned above.

At a special demonstration in New York of the mechanism, which is called the Knowles Grid-glow Relay, a tablespoon was laid in a plush cover on a small table near the relay. Although the spoon was not connected with an electric circuit, any motion to pick it up caused the warning relay lamp to glow and a bell to ring.

The falling of a drop of water upon two parallel wires extending from the lamp was sufficient to operate the alarm, and it responded to the flame of a match, and to the change in the intensity of daylight caused by raising or lowering a window-shade.

The inventor stated that his device resembled a wireless valve. He added:

"The energy required to operate it is about one-billionth part (an American billion is 1,000 millions) of a watt, or about one-fortieth of the amount of energy exerted by a fly crawling vertically upwards one inch in a second."

FASHIONS AND FANCIES

While there are many heads which show a tendency to let the hair grow, those that keep it shingled find lines that depart from the "boyish" bob most successful in marking their individuality. By no means is the large, fluffy marcelled head to be seen, but in its place one that uses odd and effective cut to create becoming as well as chic coiffures.

There are many interesting cuts for both the straight and curled head. A modernistic cut is often used in the straight head which leaves odd strands of hair in uneven lengths both at the sides, back, and sometimes bang effect. The loosely waved head is extremely becoming to most types and with unusual partings and combing may still achieve distinction.

The aim in this age is to find a coiffure that is original and as becoming as possible without adding much to the size of the head. If the hair be long and this effect still possible, why, long hair is to be desired. Otherwise the shears still lead to the path to chic.

Side-partings are still used, but these manage to create interesting lines instead of the uninteresting parted effect heretofore achieved. The hair in many instances is parted rather low on one side with the remaining hair brushed to the other side from the forehead to the very back of the head. This gives an unusual bob and is cut very short and gives an interrupted line of large, loose waves.

The forelocks cut short with odd little tails giving an interesting aspect to the sides, with a short parting just above the ear, gives a decidedly piquant coiffure.

Soft waves about the face, with an upstanding, cocks-comb effect gives an extremely arresting bob. The back of the hair is worn rather closely and trimly cut, leaving the front in full control of the unusual.

Certain types bear an extreme and trying coiffure with distinction. These may wear a "different" coiffure that leaves the sides rather long and then brushes them straight back with only a softened aspect in the slightly waved sides. Long points cut in slight sideburn effects may be seen adding an exotic note if desired.

Another unusual combing is achieved by creating a swirled effect which covers almost the entire head, but leaves the forehead severely brushed back without a relieving fringe of hair. This style

HAND-TINTED TABLE-CLOTHS.

At a small dinner party given recently by a society hostess, the table was covered with a beautiful damask cloth on which the willow-plate design was delicately hand-tinted in blue. The centre of the cloth was almost entirely taken up with the famous illustration, finely done in blue and white, and the design was also carried out in the corners. The dinner service, and even the napkins, matched the cloth.

This effective and tasteful scheme of dressing the dinner table was started some time ago, and has met with great success both in England and America. The West-end shops are showing exquisitely fine table damasks, designed after famous services, such as the Wedgwood. When they are used in conjunction with china in the same design the effect is most striking, particularly in the case of the cloths in which the design is hand-tinted. These are a choice novelty, and the faint pinks, blues, and other shades help to enhance the decorative effect of flowers, glass, and silver. Collectors of original or modern Jacobean glass and silver will be attracted by the idea of setting these appointments out on a cloth of Jacobean design. These cloths can also be had either hand-tinted or plain. It might be thought that these faint colours would promptly fade, but, on the contrary, the tinting is guaranteed to last the lifetime of the cloth. Napkins to match are invariably boxed with the cloth. A wild rose and a famous Sevres design, very finely executed, are among the most popular.

of combing, too, is best suited to the stately type with regular features.

With the coming of the coiffure that looks as if it were worn long, the chignon appears smart if it is very flat and tiny. This mode of dressing the hair is particularly effective for formal occasions.

With hair worn slightly long, the tiny fringe that is curled up at the back of a loosely waved head is most effective. The hair may also be drawn across from one side to the other in a loose fashion to resemble a wave and so achieve distinction.

When the hair is loosely waved, and not cut along any radically different outline, care should be taken that a too fluffy effect is not given. It is surprising how an odd snipping here and an artistic combing there will change an ordinary "bob" into a most unusual, chic and becoming hairdress.

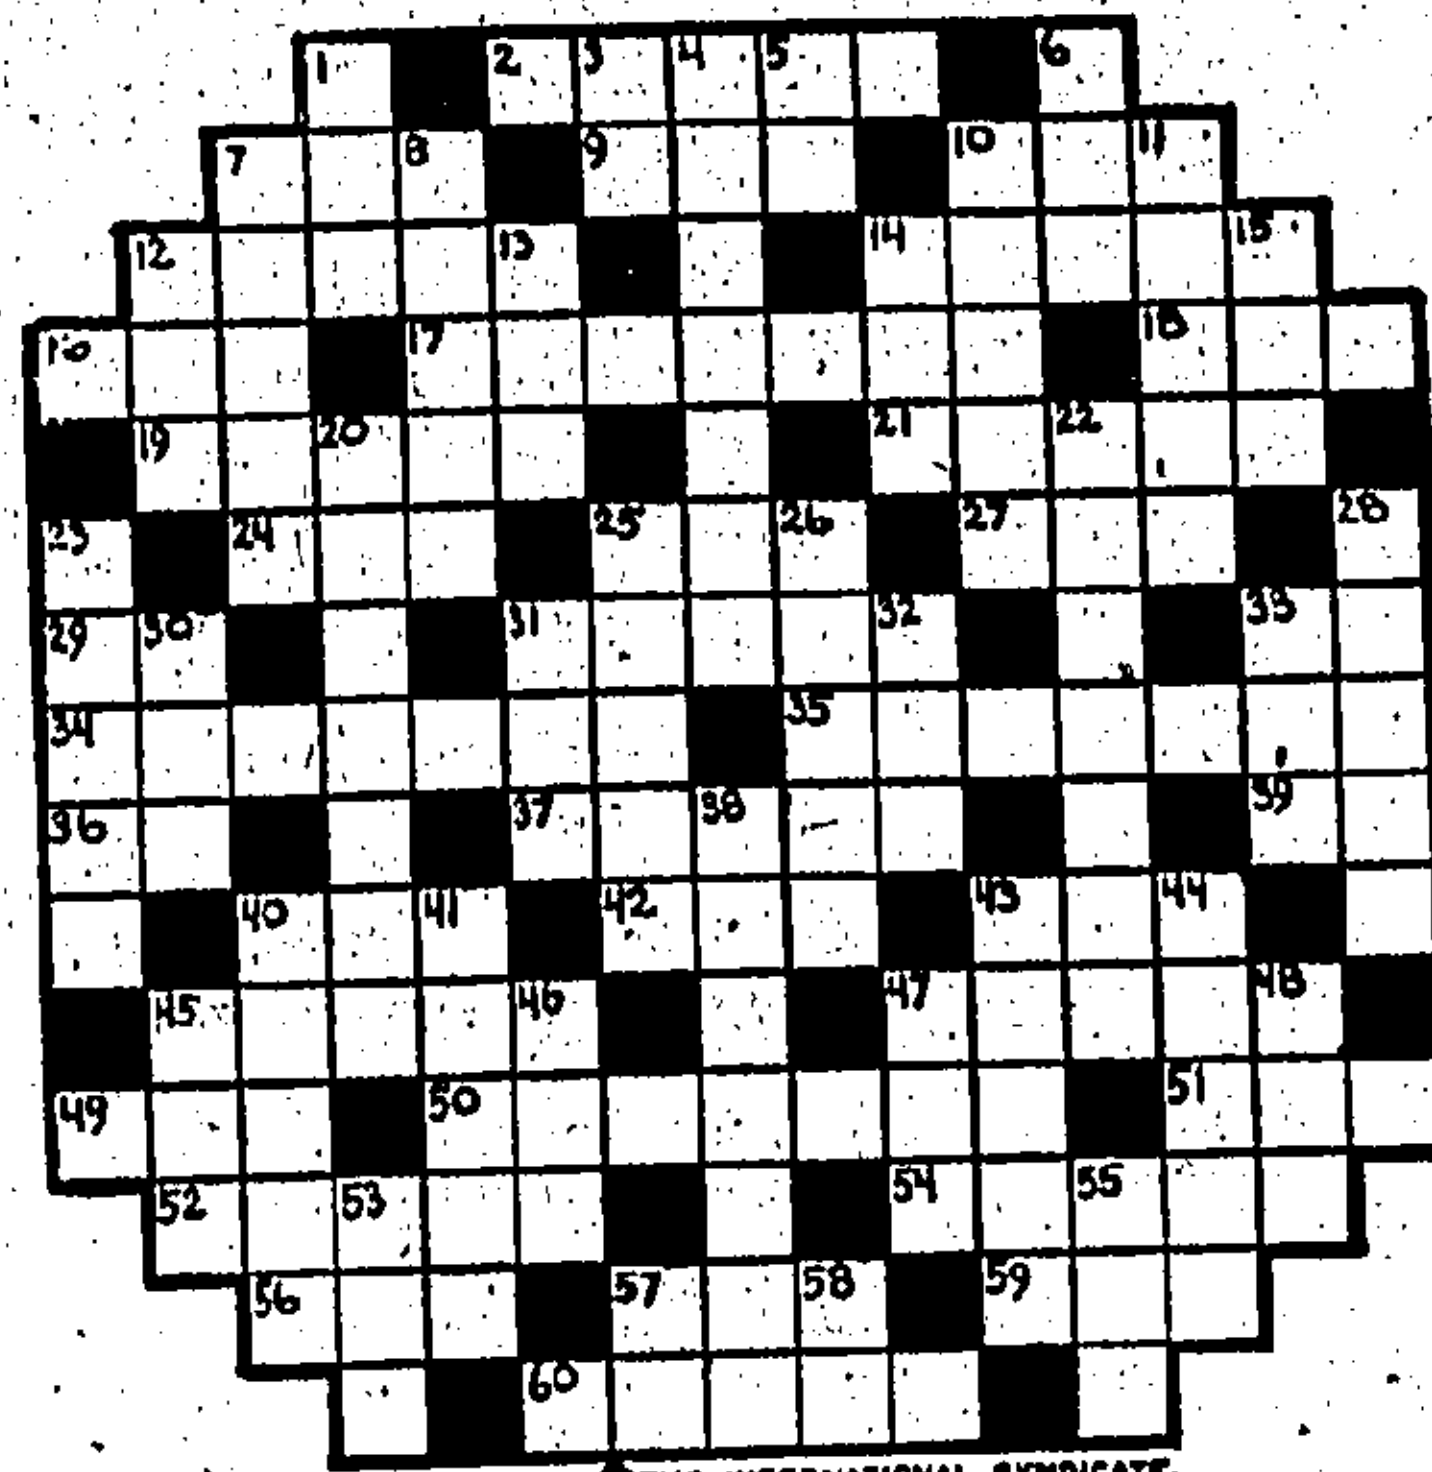

Motion picture players are naturally eager to present themselves in new and unusual coiffures, as well as highly becoming "bobs," so they go to artists who study their features and clip and wave the hair accordingly. Consequently there are always interesting heads to be seen in the films. Dorothy Mackall, Billie Dove, Natli Barr and Yola d'Avril, all seen in First National motion pictures, have worn their hair in several interesting coiffures and have chosen the above cuts as the newest and most distinctive hairdresses of the day.

"DEMOCRACY."*"Failure" Of The Representative System.*SUN YAT-SEN'S LECTURES.*Imitations of European Government 'Undesirable.'*CHINA'S UNITY ESSENTIAL.

In the fourth of the new series of lectures, the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen examines the forms which the popular movement has taken in other countries. He condemns the representative system tried in China on the grounds of the personal greed of politicians, and states that what China should aim at should be something higher than mere limitations of European forms of Government. An analogy is drawn between the union of states in America and Germany and the need for unity in China.

AN AMERICAN ANALOGY.

Books and newspapers have made us familiar with American and European ideas about Democracy. When we read some of us imagine that Europe and America have secured what they aimed at and we have only to follow them to do the same. When, however we look at the facts we find that the western democracies are far from perfect. How is it then that their ideals have not been realised?

When American Democracy overthrew English Absolutism, it found itself faced with a difference of opinion regarding the true nature of Democracy which split the country into two parties led by Washington's principal supporters in the war with England, Hamilton and Jefferson. Jefferson's party believed in absolute democracy, holding that every member of the State could and ought to take part in the affairs of Government. Their view was based on a faith in the essential tendency of human beings to act for the best. Hamilton's party on the other hand had no such belief in the goodness of human nature. They feared that the evil elements in the State would corrupt the government and work for their own profit instead of the general welfare, leading in the end to a condition of anarchy. They held that the governing power should be in the hands of a central authority and that the power of the individual should be limited on the ground that mob-tyranny with no popular opinion to restrain it, is worse than the tyranny of a despot.

Union of States.

Hamilton's party, called the party of union, stood for the amalgamation of the thirteen States—which had joined to prosecute the war with England—under a central government as against the policy of local independence. At that time the leaders of that one-third of the population which had supported the British, had migrated into Canada, and the population of the thirteen States was still small enough for the danger of their conquest piecemeal by Europe to be a real one.

China's Unity Essential.

This fact has given rise to a school of thought in China which, looking upon the vast power which the United States wield to-day, considers that China should copy them in all respects, beginning with provincial autonomy and proceeding to federal government. In taking this view its adherents make the same mistake as they did in proposing to adopt the European watchwords of Liberty and Equality as the foundation of a democratic system. Their view, if adopted, would mean breaking up the unity of China into twenty-two provinces—more if we add Mongolia and Tibet to the eighteen provinces and the three Eastern Territories and Turkestan or include districts like Jehol and Tsing Hai. The United States began with a number of disunited colonies; China has been a united nation of greater or less extent for hundreds of years under various dynasties. Union for her has meant good government while disunion has meant chaos. Even so, it is not the self-government of individual states, but the Union which has made America great and powerful. It is this splitting up of China into the spheres of influence of different militarists that we must end once for all. It is this separatist tendency which causes the foreigners to say that we Chinese cannot govern ourselves and to demand that they should organise the country. We should do more than preach united China. We should consider alliance with Japan, perhaps even with Annam, Burmah, India, Persia and Afghanistan, so that these disunited countries may become strong enough to resist Europe. The eighteen provinces, the three Eastern provinces and the districts were united under the Manchus and shall the Republic which inherited them allow them to split up again? Rascally Secessionists like Tong Kai-lu in Yunnan, Chiu Hang-t'ik in Hunan, Luk Wing-ting in Kwangsi and Chan Kwing-ming in Kiangtung, have a military federation in view, not a democratic one. It is not China's benefit that they aim at but their own.

A Bitter Struggle.

We must get this point clear. The Americans began with thirteen independent states and their unification was a difficult matter. It was only accomplished after a long and bitterly contested struggle between the parties of Hamilton and Jefferson by the victory of the former. Moreover, a compromise was reached between the two parties in which it was laid down that such matters as were to be dealt with by the Central Government—should be clearly specified in the constitution while whatever did not appear in the constitution was to remain the province of the different states; matters which were properly the concern of the Federal Government such as foreign policy and military and naval affairs were to be outside the sphere of the state administrations.

Under this compromise the power of the people was at first restricted. Members of Congress, and some local officials, were directly elected by the people while the Senate and president were elected by Congress. The system of direct election was, however, gradually extended until the President, the Senate and all local officials whose powers affect the public have come to be elected by a direct popular vote. Still only men had the right to vote. Ten or twenty years ago no women had votes and the women's movement of the past twenty years was opposed not only by men but by many women also on the ground that women were inferior to men. Eight years ago, after a hard struggle, the women of England were permitted to vote and then America followed suit. Their victory was due to the fact that the absence of men at the front showed that their work in factories and elsewhere could be done by women, and so the doctrine of woman's inferiority was proved false.

Universal Suffrage.

Now we can see how, although the aim of the European Revolutionaries was to get power in the hands of the people, the school which held that the common people were fitted to exercise direct government has failed to prove its point and what two or three hundred years of revolution has secured is in fact universal suffrage. As for the French Revolution it followed the teaching of Rousseau on the natural equality of men, and was a real experiment in direct popular government. The king and nobles were killed or fled abroad. Anyone who dared to suggest that the populace were ignorant or incompetent was sent to the guillotine. The terror found Government at an end and society laid waste. No one knew what the day would bring forth. Even among the Revolutionaries themselves a careless word might mean death, and Danton and others like him died with the King and many of the nobles. Reaction against the Terror brought in Napoleon as Emperor. These events were a serious setback to the progress of democracy. And why? The idea was in the air. The power of the kings had been broken; and one would have expected it to progress from day to day. One cause was the weakness of the party which held that the power of the people should be limited, and believed in centralised government. The harm was done by the majority who worked for unlimited democracy. In the French Revolution this unlimited democracy saw no need for leaders, in fact it killed those who had the most talent leaving only a band of rascals, blind to the truth, ready instruments: deprived of sight and hearing the people could not tell truth from falsehood but followed after any agitator. It was the reaction from this extreme which caused the greatest harm to democracy, and it was the democrats themselves who brought it about.

Growth of Democracy.

Elsewhere than in France the small countries of Europe, Denmark, Holland, Portugal and Spain, became more democratic with the feeling of these times. As for England the English were the first revolutionaries. They killed one King; but ten years afterwards they restored the monarchy. The English princes and nobles realised the power of the people and instead of resisting them made a compromise with them; but still it was not until 1832 that the common people got votes and not until after the European War that women had them. The English are generous to their dependents. Ireland once kept down by force of arms has been made independent and so has Egypt after an attempt to go back on a promise made during the War. India has the fuller suffrage it asked for: while in England trade unions are free to organise themselves and workmen can sit in the Cabinet. This talent of the English governing classes for going with the stream has hitherto preserved and established the British constitution.

Nevertheless, it is in Germany that the newest expression of the idea of democracy is to be found. Germany has the largest workers' unions of any country in the world, but until the war democracy in Germany was behind that of England. This fact is commonly ascribed to the policy of Bismark who united the twenty old states of Germany to make the powerful German Empire in spite of the opposition of Austria and France. The influence of Bismark who had in twenty years combined the twenty odd states of Germany into the strongest country in Europe was not confined to the sphere of military and foreign affairs only. He made the central government too strong to resist, and in fact won his victories not only against foreign states but against the popular movement at home. Moreover, since the Franco-Prussian War, that is during the latter half of the nineteenth century, an economic movement arose alongside the political one: as the struggle for political democracy gradually became less severe there arose the doctrine of socialism (which I call economic democracy).

Bismark and Germany.

The light then developed into a struggle between capital and labour. The earliest socialists were Germans. (You all know of Marx who was the greatest of them and was followed by the original Russian Revolutionaries). The political and economic revolutionary doctrines were allied to one another. How then did it happen that the former met with success and not the latter? Bismark was the man who saw that the movement could not be put down by force. What he did was to introduce a kind of state socialism as an alternative to the Marxian doctrine. For instance, railways form an indispensable item in the economic life of any country. (We can see that in the prosperity which the Chinese railways have brought to the provinces through which they run). In England and France the railway system was then almost entirely in private hands and the control over industry generally which this fact gave to the capitalists, did much to intensify the conflict between rich and poor. Bismark not only nationalised the railways but he had rules laid down governing hours of work and instituted pension and insurance schemes for the workers. These ideas, he took from the socialists; but it was Bismark who was the first to use the power of the state to secure control of railways and banks, and with the resources thus obtained, to better the position of the workers and to make them contented. Before Bismark's time many German workmen used to go abroad to find work; afterwards the process was reversed. This was the method by which Bismark, by removing popular grievances, proved himself a strong opponent of popular government.

HOTEL FIRE.*MANILA LADY'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Mrs. Rose Mildred Beck, wife of I. Beck, narrowly escaped death in a Yokohama hotel fire on July 5, according to information received in Manila on July 18, says the "Manila Bulletin." Mrs. Beck was stopping at the Tent Hotel in Yokohama. She left on the evening of July 4 for Sulphur Springs. That night the hotel and two adjacent buildings burned to the ground and one occupant, J. Klette, and export merchant of Hamburg, lost his life.

When Mrs. Beck returned on the following day she found that all her baggage had been burned. Friends told her she was lucky as the room she had occupied was hard to get out of and had she remained in Yokohama over night she might have met the same fate as the one victim.

COLLEGE HONOURS.*92 ORIENTAL STUDENTS GET DEGREES.

A United Press message from New York states—Degrees were awarded to ninety-two students from Japan, China, the Philippine Islands, Hawaii and other Far Eastern countries, in three of the leading American universities this year.

Students from the Orient have increased in number since the World War and the introduction of the English language in the Philippine and Hawaiian Islands has done much to make the American universities popular in the Far East.

In the 1927 graduating class of the Columbia University, 606 students from the Orient were awarded degrees; fourteen were awarded degrees from the University of Chicago and thirteen from Yale University. The Oriental students seem to prefer the Fine Arts courses and 61 were graduated from Columbia University alone, with the degrees of Bachelor or Master of Arts. Many received degrees in philosophy and law and science.

Those upon whom degrees were conferred include: Chen Chang William, Doctor of Medicine, Canton.

Yan Kwang Poon, Master of Arts, Hong Kong.

MR. GEORGE BURY.

The many friends of Mr. George Bury, at one time Chief Steward of the str. "President Madison," will regret to hear that he died on the str. "West Sequana" on July 18, when near Hakodate, and was buried at sea.

set-backs which it experienced. The first was Hamilton's victory over Jefferson; the second, the excesses of the French Revolutionaries; the third, the cunning policy of Bismark. But we know that with all its possible abuses the idea of democracy will persist and cannot be destroyed. Since the war we have seen the destruction of the German and Russian despotisms, and in many countries the extension of the franchise to women. The attainment of the vote is the most solid success which democracy has won; and the extension of the franchise to noble and base, rich and poor, ignorant and educated alike, is regarded by some as being equivalent to pure democracy. In fact Switzerland has not only the vote; it has the Initiative and the Referendum as well, on the theory that if the people have power to elect their legislators they ought also to have the power to initiate and repeal legislation. In some states of America, the people have the power of recall also. They can dismiss their representatives. These north-western states of the United States of America with their four forms which popular government can take, furnish a model to the rest of the world. Priestly government has gone; government by kings only survives precariously in England, Japan and Italy. The question of the day is direct popular government.

Representative System.

When we examine the forms which the popular movement has taken, we find everywhere it has resolved itself into a representative system. We have tried this system in China and it has failed; our representatives are simply a lot of slaves who have sold themselves for filthy lucre. There is only one country which has gone beyond the representative system and that is Russia, which has devised a system of popular self-determination. I do not feel myself capable of expounding their system of government but I consider it is in advance of the representative system. What I am aiming at, however, is not an imitation of European forms of government. I have my own views; if these carry conviction China will be able to move on ahead of Europe. If not then we must follow behind in the dust which Europe has stirred up. (The next lecture will appear in Saturday's "China Mail.")

IN MANCHURIA.*COMMENT ON SIGNIFICANT APPOINTMENTS.

Tokyo, July 25. The "Chugai," discussing the recent appointment of influential financiers and politicians to the management of the South Manchuria Railway, regards the change as a preliminary step towards realisation of the Government's positive policy in Manchuria. Up to now the policy of Japan in those regions has been hampered by lack of co-operation between the S.M.R., the military garrison and the civil administration, whose interests frequently conflict. Consequently the Government's intention is to unify the general system of administration with a view to assisting the development of communications and the natural resources of Manchuria. It is understood that in future a clear-cut line will be drawn between financial affairs and administrative matters, the S.M.R. being made responsible for the former, while the civil government of the Lensed Territory will concern itself with all political affairs.

THREE KILLED.*BY BOLT OF LIGHTNING.

New York, July 17. Three persons were struck by lightning and three others killed by a storm which broke over the metropolis with great fury following a prolonged heat wave.

The deaths by lightning occurred at Coney Island where 110,000 persons were seeking relief from the heat in the city. The storm came suddenly and spread havoc through the resort.

A semi-panic seized the throng and there was a rush for subway trains in which several were badly injured. Police reserves were summoned to preserve order.

Two persons were killed in a grade crossing accident as a result of the storm. The driver of a sedan, blinded by the rain, drove in front of a suburban train. Another was caught while swimming in the Hudson and drowned.—United Press.

U. S. CONSUL SHOT.

Vera Cruz, Mex., July 17. El Dictamen has received a telegram from Puerto Mexico saying the American consul there had been shot and seriously wounded by an intruder in his home. The assailant, who was masked, fled. Physicians said the wound was serious.—Associated Press.

THE WAY THE WORLD WAGS.

A Sea Monster.

Resembling an octopus, a sea monster washed ashore near Longniddry, on the Haddington coast, had about a dozen tentacles.

Said to be the largest geranium in the country, a plant at Moseley Hall, Cheshire, is 15 feet high and 13 feet across, with 518 blooms.

The Rollright Stones, situated in North Oxfordshire, considered to be the most important Druidical remains after Stonehenge, are for sale.

Charged with murdering his wife by stabbing her in the face, Frederick Joseph Stockwell, aged 31, an L.C.C. fireman, of Armstead-walk, Dagenham, was remanded at Stratford, E.

A new Metropolitan Railway electric train is capable of a speed of 65 miles an hour. It has a horse-power of over 2,500, a starting tractive effort of over 30,000lb., and is able to attain a speed of 30 miles an hour in a less number of seconds. It has 482 seats as compared with 316 of the old type rolling stock.

Horse That Sits Down.

Crowds in Cheapside, London, E.C., were greatly amused at the antics of a horse drawing a coal van. When a policeman put out his arm to stop the traffic the horse sat down on his haunches. When the traffic was released the animal rose and walked on. The horse, which is described by the owners as hard-working and intelligent, makes a habit of sitting down when stopped.

Privates Leonard Falloon and Albert Jones, of the 1st West Yorkshire Regiment, were at Hollywood, County Down, remanded on the charge of stealing confidential documents and money, the property of the Secretary for War. It was stated that the documents were found intact, Falloon having disclosed where they were. Jones made a statement to the effect that they stole the box in order to obtain their discharge from the Army and having broken it open went to a prayer meeting where they equally divided the money.

New Health Society.

Sir Mortimer Singer has given £1,000 to the New Health Society, of which Sir W. Arbuthnot Lane is president, and which has as its object the education of the public in disease prevention.

The Archdeacon of Northumberland, Canon C. H. Blackett-Ord, who is 69 and a widower, is engaged to Miss Grace Marcia Brown, eldest daughter of the late Rev. Dixon Brown, of Unthank Hall, Northumberland.

Thieves forced a safe at the Pavilion Picture House, Balham High Road, London, S.W., and stole about £30, but a safe in a dairy shop next door defied their efforts and they bespattered the walls of the shop with eggs.

Glasgow Corporation has decided to reintroduce half-penny tram fares almost immediately. The cheap fare was discontinued seven years ago in view of the growing expenditure of the system, and efforts to restore it were always met with opposition from the former tramway manager.

Mock Homage.

Some of them clothed in long robes and turbans, 200 students from the Imperial College of Science and Technology, South Kensington, S.W., offered mock homage to the Albert Memorial. They marched bareheaded and with crossed arms, and a motley band played a funeral march. At their head was a student swinging a tin can, from which smoke emerged.

Public interest has recently been focussed on Northcliff House, the new home of the "Daily Mail," that marvellously conceived building incorporating the most modern machinery and the latest scientific equipment in the world. For three hours during the night there is an output of 756,000 copies of the "Daily Mail" per hour from 42 printing presses.

A cry in the night, gripping pains in the vitals, cramps, weakening diarrhoea; whether child or adult, there is immediate comfort and ease from pain in Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. It pays to keep it always at hand. For sale everywhere.

A Wife Wanted.

The Lord Mayor of Birmingham has received many letters from girls expressing a wish to get into touch with a young Australian tomato grower who wrote saying that he wanted a wife. All the girls are under 30 and they live within 30 miles radius of Birmingham. Some have sent their photographs and others offer references. The Lord Mayor is forwarding all letters.

The death is announced of Paymaster Rear-Admiral Sir Francis Harrison Smith.

The Hon. Sir Sidney Robert Greville, who for twenty-five years played an important part in Court life, has died at St. James's Palace at the age of 60.

Professor Winifred Cullis, presenting prizes at Rodean School, complained of a slight deterioration in the general manners of the young women of to-day.

Speaking at Stoke Newington, Mr. Lloyd George prophesied that "the Tory party is in for the spill of its life; when it reaches the next cataract it will be keel upwards."

The Prince of Wales, in the grounds of the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, unveiled a memorial to the "other ranks" of the Army who fell in the Great War.

Lord Swaythling, senior partner of Messrs. Samuel Montagu and Co., the famous firm of bankers and auctioneers, has died in his 58th year, after being ill for some time.

The Prince of Wales concluded his tour in the West of England, after a descent into the biggest and oldest slate quarry in the kingdom, and inaugurating a new water supply on Bodmin Moor.

Twenty boys of Somerset Boys' Home, Bath, offered to look after a delinquent of 10, a new boy at the home, who was stated to have stolen a bicycle, and the police withdrew the charge.

Hastings initiated the celebrations in connection with the ninth centenary of the birth of William the Conqueror, which was continued in the first week of July on the other side of the Channel at Falaise.

At the inquest, at Marylebone on Mrs. Maude Olga Keens, 29, and her daughter, Sheila Fay Diana Keens, aged 13 months, who were found shot, the jury returned a verdict that Mrs. Keens murdered the child and committed suicide while she was of unsound mind.

Having taken counsel's opinion and that of the Attorney-General, the Government propose to adopt the view that the "unstamped receipts" lately issued by the Midland Bank are liable to stamp duty. It is announced that a test case to place the interpretation of the law beyond all doubt will be instituted without delay.

The grand bazaar of the Highland Association was opened in Glasgow by the Countess of Cassilis, with the Duke of Atholl in the chair. ### FINAL EFFORTS.

Attempts to Agree at Geneva.

AMERICA HOLDS OUT.

Japanese Trying Hard To Smooth Difficulties.

Rapid City, yesterday.

President Coolidge has instructed the American delegates at Geneva to make every effort to reach an agreement, but if they fail he expects the meeting to adjourn sine die.—Reuter.

It is understood that President Coolidge feels there is no foundation for the report that the Conference will adjourn till Autumn or any other time. It appears an effort is being made to reach an understanding on Thursday. If that fails the meetings should end.—Reuter's American Service.

Japanese Efforts.

Rugby, yesterday.

Further conversation took place to-day between the United States delegates to the Geneva Naval Limitation Conference and the Japanese delegates, who are still making efforts to compose the differences that have arisen between British and American viewpoints. Some hopes are still entertained at Geneva that an understanding may be reached, and newspapers in this connection attach importance to the fact that the British Ambassador at Washington, Sir Esme Howard, is keeping in close touch with the American administration.—British Wireless Service.

London Pessimistic.

London, yesterday.

Authoritative quarters in London are to-day inclined to be pessimistic regarding the outcome at Geneva unless there is an eleventh-hour change in the situation.

It is believed that in the event of a deadlock the British policy of naval construction will remain unchanged, because it is based solely on British needs which are unchanged.—Reuter.

Japan's Plan.

Geneva, yesterday.

At "thirteen o'clock"—the Japanese presented a compromise plan, which the American's rejected. Its terms are not stated. The American's propose to submit a counter-scheme. The prospects are gloomy.—Reuter's American Service.

American Hopes.

New York, yesterday.

The morning newspapers continue to feature "Geneva," the unanimous opinion being that the Conference can and must be salvaged.

The "New York Times" says that both delegations are seemingly in the attitude of waiting for the signal "fire when you are ready," but the people of both countries are not excited over the question of a little more or a little less. What they hope for is some demonstration from Geneva to the effect that nothing has broken nor can break the Anglo-American accord, and that they are ready to shake hands and part as good friends.

The "New York World," which continues to urge a meeting of President Coolidge and Mr. Baldwin, suggests the adjournment at Geneva should be postponed until after August 7, when it is arranged that the Prince of Wales, Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Kellogg and General Dawes meet at the dedication of the new Ontario-Buffalo bridge, "when Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Kellogg and General Dawes should hide themselves till they have found a formula which will save everybody's faces, secure everybody's real needs and end the dangerous nonsense which has been worked up at Geneva.

The "Tribune" and the "World" publish special articles from Rapid City and describe President Coolidge as feeling that no good but much harm would result if he met Mr. Baldwin because, according to the "Tribune," this would imply a lack of confidence in the American Delegation at Geneva and might be construed as an affront to Japan.

The "New York World" even says that President Coolidge is no longer hopeful of success at Geneva and his proposed conference with Mr. Baldwin is off.

THE TOUR OF STATE.

Princes and Premier at Ottawa.

THE FAMOUS CARILLON.

Lord And Lady Willingdon Greet Visitors.

Ottawa, yesterday.

The Princes and Mr. Baldwin have arrived and were welcomed at the Station by Lord and Lady Willingdon, the Federal Cabinet Ministers and civilian and military representatives. The party, proceeded to Parliament Hill and were greeted with resounding cheers from the crowds, the famous carillon playing "O Canada," "God Save the King," and "God bless the Prince of Wales."

Mr. Mackenzie King read addresses of welcome.

After the addresses Mr. Mackenzie King announced that the Prince of Wales and Mr. Baldwin had been appointed by a special Order-in-Council of Canada Privy Councillors, and the minutes of the Council's last meeting recording the appointments were presented to each.—Reuter.

"A MOST INGENIOUS TRICK."

"It was a most ingenious trick," remarked Mr. Fry, the magistrate, at Bow Street Police Court, when binding over Sidney Sales, an unemployed labourer, on a charge of attempting to obtain money by false pretences from a Police constable.

The officer stated that while he was on street duty, the prisoner asked him where "Jack," was. He replied that he did not know "Jack," and Sales then explained that he was the policeman who was on that beat the previous day, and that he had put £1 on a horse which had won at 8 to 1. "I am a runner for a bookmaker," he confessed, "and as a matter of fact I never put the money on until after the race was run. I have been at the game some years, and am never likely to be caught. 'Jack' made out a slip, leaving a blank for the horse's name, and I filled it in afterwards." He went on to suggest that witness should invest 10s. on the same terms, but instead of doing so the constable took him into custody.

Sales pleaded guilty, and the magistrate said he would deal leniently with him in view of his previous good character.

REVUE NOVELTY.

A revue with more than 100 artists is in rehearsal for presentation at a West End theatre. It is called "Shake Your Feet" and is under the direction of Mr. Laddie Cliff.

Mr. Billy Merson will be at the head of the company, which will include Mr. Jack Hylton's band, Miss Anita Elson, Miss Gwen Farrar, Miss Joyce Barbour, Mr. John Kirby, Lord Ruthven's daughters, who are professionally known as the Ralli Twins, and five of the original Hoffman Girls.

BRITISH POLICY.

Expert Explains To Americans.

RUBBER RESTRICTION UPHELD.

Lecturer Makes Interesting Comparisons.

Williamstown (Mass.), yesterday.

Sir Arthur Willert, a British expert on foreign affairs, lecturing at the Institute of Politics on British foreign policy, defended the restriction of rubber output and pointed out in this regard to American efforts to raise the price of cotton.

He said that if the British had not taken action to restrict production many plantations would have disappeared, and it was highly probable that Rubber would stand to-day at a higher price than it does.

Sir A. Willert upheld the British policy in the Near East, comparing it to the American policy in Cuba and Panama. He said that we had no policy which prevents freedom of trading so much as the American policy of protection does, and denied that Britain ever discriminated against American interests in the Near East.

In regard to British policy in Egypt, which depended on the necessity of keeping inviolate the Suez Canal, he declared that history would vindicate it just as it would vindicate the American policy in Panama.—Reuter's American Service.

THE ROLE OF LIBERALISM.

Speaking at Glasgow, Sir Thomas Inskip, the Solicitor-General, said he could not believe there was any hope for Liberalism as a party in the future except as a balancing party. Mr. Lloyd George, he believed, looked forward at best to guiding a Liberal Party in possession of a sufficient number of votes so as to tip the scale and control the fortunes of the other two parties. Whether that was a very honourable or distinguished part to play in politics he would leave Mr. Lloyd George to say.

Mr. Lloyd George had been telling them at Aberdeen that the consumption of Scottish herrings would give the Russians some Scottish common sense. That sort of argument was capable of indefinite expansion.

He supposed that when Mr. Lloyd George went to the Western Isles he would tell them that the consumption of Scottish whisky would give the Russian Scottish common sense, and again at Dundee the marmalade there might do the same.

The fact was Russian trade really consisted in our buying from Russia the things they could not sell to anybody else, and only a proportion of what we paid them had been spent in this country. If we had been buying timber and oil and other products from Russia, let us in future buy from our own Dominions and Dependencies, and he guaranteed that we should get more back from them. It was better to be masters in our own house than to lose our soul.
